Contura 700 series, easily positioned with clean lines

Fire has never been hotter. Swedish stove manufacturer Contura has two new models; Contura 710 and Contura 720T. The new stoves are small and compact and their clean, simple lines makes them as easy to position in a castle as in a cottage.

The fire is becoming a more important part of the interior, which means that stoves are a red hot subject for home owners. Modern stoves are manufactured with great environmental consideration and produce significantly lower emissions compared to older models. They are also kind to your wallet! Contura in Småland is the European market leader in the field and combines traditional Swedish engineering skill with modern design and finger tip control sensitivity.

Contura's two new stoves, 710 and 720T are small stoves with clean, straight lines. They have no sidelights, which together with their compact size makes them easy to position.

Contura 710 – compact shape which means that it can be placed in a corner. Available with a soft-close storage door, floor protector in glass or sheet metal, outside air connection and chimney.

Contura 720T - has an attractive, heat retaining soapstone surround, which makes it extra efficient. Available with a floor protector in glass or sheet metal with an outside air connection and chimney.

"A lot of people have asked for a stove model with clean, simple lines that is easy to position, which made it extra special to be able to introduce Contura 710 and Contura 720T," says Phil Wood, UK Sales Director for Contura.

The Contura 700 series is available to purchase from our dealers across the country. Contura 710 SRP inc vat from £1595 and Contura 720T SRP inc vat from £2455.
